2018 Tax Deductions

By: Sam Patterson

Did you know if the main reason for living in an assisted living community is for medical care, then that cost is a deductible medical expense?

Section 213 of the Internal Revenue Code allows deductions for medical care for an individual, spouse or dependent if the expenses exceed 7.5% of the taxpayer's adjusted gross income. The monthly fee of an assisted living is a medical expense. It further states that if a resident is living in an assisted living community because of a medical condition which requires them to be there, and meals and lodging are furnished, then the cost is considered a medical care expense. Please consult your tax advisor on this rule if you feel this would apply to your situation.

On the Road Again!

In January, Edencrest at Beaverdale took a group to tour the Salisbury House right here in Des Moines. The construction of Salisbury House began in 1923. With 22,500 square feet on four floors, the 42-room mansion originally included 17 bedrooms and 16 bathrooms. The House's interiors included imported 16th-century English oak paneling and floors, as well as five fireplaces, which wife, Edith, had amber rocks with a light behind placed in during the summer to emulate a natural fire.

The tour was a big hit! Jackie loved the oldest Weeks' boy's room (William). William and his friends made a movie in the Salisbury house, which played in the room. Kristie's favorite part was the library, which contained so many literary treasures. Sara very much enjoyed learning of how Mr. Carl Weeks acquired many of the building materials for the Salisbury House. Everyone enjoyed seeing the Weeks family's new take on the English fifteenth-century
